Job No: 12525  Associate Instructional Professional

The Sandra Day O’Connor College of Law at Arizona State University invites applications for a full-time position commencing in August 2019 to teach first-year and upper-level courses in the College of Law’s highly-ranked Legal Method and Writing program. The position offers a professional environment with job security that exceeds the requirements of ABA Standard 405(c). Ranked 27th in the nation by U.S. News, the College of Law recently opened a new state-of-the-art building on ASU’s downtown Phoenix campus.

This is a full-time, benefits-eligible appointment. This appointment is as a probationary academic professional, on track to continuing status, under the university title of Associate Instructional Professional. Information about Academic Professionals at ASU, including status, rank, titles, and appointment categories, can be found at https://www.asu.edu/aad/manuals/acd/acd505-03.html.

Candidates must possess a J.D. degree and at least one year of experience teaching Legal Method and Writing courses to J.D. students at a fully-accredited law school. Preferred candidates will have a record of demonstrated excellence as a teacher, professional contributions in the field of legal writing, and service activities.

The application deadline is September 15, 2018 and if not filled, every two weeks thereafter until the search is closed. To apply, please submit a resume, a statement of interest, and the contact information for two references. Successful applicants may be invited on campus for an interview, though in rare cases an interview may take place by telephone or by video. Please direct inquiries and applications to Ms. Rebecca Hutchison, Coordinator for Appointments Committee, Sandra Day O’Connor College of Law, Arizona State University, MC9520, 111 E. Taylor St. Phoenix, AZ 85004-4467 or electronically to: Rebecca.Hutchison@asu.edu.
